Learn the basic guidelines and rules on how the tax laws are applied to noncitizens who work or live in the U.S. This session will cover basic immigration categories of immigrants (i.e., green card holders) and nonimmigrants (e.g., visitors, students, work visas). Discussion will also focus on how to determine resident status for U.S. income tax purposes, basic U.S. income tax rules for residents and nonresidents of the U.S. and special cases relating to income tax treaties and students.

Speaker:

Vaughn Cook practices law as a director in the firm's Hawaii Island office. A licensed Certified Public Accountant (not in public practice) as well as an attorney, his practice includes taxation law, general business/commercial law, immigration, and administrative licensing law statewide. Within the taxation area, Vaughn's areas of concentration are international taxation, corporate taxation and general business transactional planning for both profit and non-profit corporations.
